

ALEXANDRIA.

THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 26.

THE WORKINGMEN of the North are beginning to realize the fact that they have been deceived, and that though their ears have been filled with the cry that protection protects labor, their pockets have been kept empty, and, in many instances, even their stomachs. At a large meeting of the laborers of Philadelphia Tuesday night, one of the speakers declared that "as our forefathers protested in 1776 against taxation without representation, so we to-night protest against a tax which we know is equally as unjust." Another one, answering his own question, "why is it that the manufacturer wants to control the votes of his workmen?" replied, "because you have a system in this country by which you tax yourselves for his benefit." Continuing, he said: "They say the tariff is for the benefit of American labor. Yes, so it is; but not for the American laborer. It makes you labor longer and get less. In our early days the country had the audacity to grow at an enormous rate and pay wages double those in the old country. The tariff has killed honest industries and does not create any." These speeches were loudly applauded, and the meeting adopted unanimously resolutions in favor of a low, or no tariff on raw materials and the necessities of life. The tide has at last set in. That it may reach the proportions of a flood is the hope of all really wise Americans who have the good of the people of their country at heart.

Mr. McMILLIN, in his speech in favor of the tariff bill now before Congress, said the question at issue is "whether we will reduce the tax on whisky or the tax on clothing, the tax on that without which men can live and prosper, or on that which is essential to their existence and comfort—a question that narrows itself down to a contest between the drunkard's appetites and the poor man's back." Mr. McMILLIN only stated the case fairly. How people, in a land of free schools and cheap newspapers, can be induced by the transparent fallacies of the few rich owners of protected mines and factories, and their paid agents, to oppose a bill that relieves the tax on whisky in order that the tax on the necessities of life may be removed or lessened, is past finding out.

THE DEMOCRATS of Halifax county have endorsed President Cleveland for re-nomination, and in the very same breath request the Virginia delegation in Congress to secure the immediate repeal of the internal revenue system. No wonder people outside of Virginia have a poor opinion of the intelligence of the Virginia democracy. Why, the chief reason for the President's re-nomination in all the States except Virginia and North Carolina is the fact that in his last message to Congress he earnestly recommended the retention of the internal revenue system. It is no less absurd to be a Cleveland man and an advocate of the repeal of the internal revenue system than it would be to be a Temperance man and an advocate of whisky guzzling.

MR. JOHN WISE's brother, in a speech he made at a republican meeting in Williamsburg the other day, said "Gen. Mahone would be re-elected chairman of the State committee; that he was the only man the republicans had who had the means, time, and capacity to fill the office, and that John S. Wise would vote for him." Mr. John Wise himself declares that if his present mutiny be suppressed, he will be as loyal as ever to the "Old Man." Evidently, and as known from the first by all familiar with his "methods" and his "malign influence," the General has "got 'em," and with him, as the old leaders of his party in Virginia know to their sorrow, it is woe to the conquered.

THE IRISH AMERICANS having organized for the advancement of their ends, and the German Americans having done the same, the English Americans, many of whom heretofore have not even taken the trouble to become naturalized, have now determined to follow suit, and for that purpose are taking out naturalization papers wherever they have located, so as to be able to put their votes where they will do them the most good. Well, the institutions of this country are as liberal in respect of politics as of religion, and so long as its foreign-born citizens don't lug into the former foreign questions, few native citizens will object to any political organizations they may form.

SENATOR HOAR is a big man in Boston; but, according to the accounts of the return of Sullivan to that city, published in the newspapers thereof, that slagger is bigger than he and his colleague, Senator Dawes, and Representative Lodge combined, good republicans as they are. And yet all the latter extol the culture and refinement of Boston; and condemn and denounce the illiteracy and barbarity of the South.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26, 1888.
Mr. W. B. Farnell, a republican of Rappahannock county, Va., brings intelligence here to the effect that Senator Riddleberger is to be the candidate of the republicans for the district now represented in the House by Col. O'Ferrall. Rappahannock is one of the banner democratic counties of that district. It having been pretty well conceded, he says, that O'Ferrall will again be the nominee of the democrats, the republicans are concentrating on Riddleberger. This concentration he thinks is based more or less

It is understood that the difficulty grew out of a dispute on "local option," the election for which was going on at the time.

DEATH OF A GRANDNIECE OF THOMAS JEFFERSON.—Mrs. James Blair Smith died of bronchitis at her late home in this city on Friday, May 18, 1888, and was one of twelve children. Her father was Wilson Jefferson Cary, and her mother's name before marriage was Virginia Randolph. The families of both father and mother were kin of the Fairfaxs, Randolphs, and Jeffersons of Virginia. As a young girl, Mrs. Smith passed much time at the house of her grand-niece, Thomas Jefferson. An emerald gold watch which she received from him on her sixteenth birthday is still preserved by her family. At the age of 23 she was married to the Rev. Edward Dunlap Smith, D. D., of Philadelphia. She lived in Washington some years while her husband was the Congressional chaplain. In 1853 she came to New York, where he became the pastor of the Chelsea Presbyterian Church in Twenty-second street. In 1883 the Rev. Dr. Smith died. Mrs. Smith left these children: Mr. Lewis Randolph Smith of New York, Mr. Wilson Cary Smith of Central Valley, N. Y., Mr. A. Proceedings of Congress.

SENATE.

Among the bills reported from committees and placed on the calendar was the House bill to extend the time for the construction of the Staten Island bridge across Arthur Kill; also to provide for the enlargement of the dimensions of the wharf at Fort Monroe, and appropriating $35,000 for an equestrian statue of Gen. Zachary Taylor in the city of Washington.

Mr. Sherman, from the Conference Committee on the House joint resolution accepting the invitation of the French republic to take part in the international exposition in Paris in 1889, made report, which was agreed to. It fixes the amount of appropriation at $250,000.

The Senate then resumed consideration of the railroad land forfeiture bill.

HOUSE.

The House at an early hour went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff bill.

Another Exposure.

BOSTON, April 26.—Last evening about twenty-five persons were present at the seance given by Mrs. Amanda Cowan, at the Hotel Van Rensselaer, among them being a party of gentlemen and ladies who were convinced she was a fraud and their purpose was her unmasking. After several spirit forms had been seen, where three forms were seen at once, one was caught by a person present and her shriek was the signal for the producing of lights. The spirit caught proved to be a woman in the employ of Mrs. Cowan. At once all was confusion and the husband of Mrs. Cowan and three or four sluggers in their employ assaulted the party and John D. Danbar was struck with a "billy." The police, who had been notified of the row, arrived, and in their search, Mrs. Cowan was found partly disrobed behind the curtain and a man and a girl were also found in the cabinet. Cowan and his wife were taken to the police station and Cowan held for assault and battery and the woman released.

Mr. Blaine.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The Sun of to-day publishes a rumor that the last thing Mr. Blaine will do as he embarks on board the steamship which is to bring him home to the United States, will be to renew, in the most positive language, his refusal to be the republican candidate for the Presidency. This time the declaration will be so absolute that it will give to all his friends a notice which they cannot ignore. He will say that even if he should be nominated by the republican convention he will refuse to stand.

A Fatal Affray.

PEARL RIVER, Tex., April 26.—An old quarrel was renewed in the Red Front saloon yesterday between Frank Nolan and William Jordan, well known and wealthy cattle dealers. During the discussion Jordan secured a billiard cue and struck Nolan a murderous blow over the head. Although the skull was fractured and his eye blinded with blood, he caught Jordan as he fled, and plunged a dirk into Jordan's back. Both men fell to the floor insensible. No hope of the recovery of either is entertained.

Letter from Danville.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]
DANVILLE, Va., April 23.—This charming little city of nine thousand population sits upon a succession of hills on the south side of the romantic Dan. The city as you approach presents a beautiful appearance, with its large mills, huge tobacco factories, lofty spires, and handsome residences, in which the "tobacco kings" luxuriate and enjoy the good things of life, earned by an intelligent handling of the "weed," many large fortunes having been made by the manufacture and sale of tobacco in this city, which is considered one of the best markets in the country; but the building up of many interior markets, such as at South Boston, Martinsville, Chase City, Clarksville, Henderson, Oxford, and many other progressive little towns, will doubtless put a "cut off" on Danville, which will require a great effort to hold her present position in the tobacco trade. Whilst tobacco is the main feature there is a tendency to diversify, and the cotton factory interests are now on a sound and successful basis. There are now here three large mills, two of which have been running for several years, and the third has just been built and put into operation.

Railroads, situated on the north side of the river in North Danville—and gives employment to 600 hands, and when completed will employ at least 1,000 operatives. And then, too, all this capital is furnished by Danville men, who own and run these large factories. The paid dress goods manufactured here stand high in the trade, and ever since the construction of the mills there have been in existence a few years, the fabrics are worthy of a medium grade, of attractive patterns and a fraction cheaper than eastern mills can furnish the same goods. Danville must not expect to continue to thrive on tobacco alone. Other interests must be developed, other manufacturing enterprises must be started. Danville, like Alexandria, has been largely to railroads that have discriminated against her rather than in her favor. Railroads soon forget "charitable subscriptions," and your good old city of Alexandria is to-day paying dearly for the hundreds of thousands subscribed to the old Orange and Alexandria and Manassas Gap Railroads. The tobacco business at this time is languishing, two months ago it was booming—since that time it has averaged a decline in prices at warehouse sales of from 25 to 50 per cent; so for some weeks past Danville has been a very dull place in the mercantile line—large stores, full stocks, numerous clerks and customers few, merchants despondent and say they see no prospect of an early recovery. A few years back the city had wonderful prosperity and real estate "went up out of sight" in prices. Now you can see and buy it, too, if you wish. I find numbers of tobacco factories closed and several desirable main street stores labeled "for rent." A few years ago every store was occupied and more wanted. The tobacco trade, however, has not been button-tight, walk with erect carriage and "look every inch a policeman," like some of your city guardians. They swagger along, smoke on duty, occasionally take "a smile," and are a jolly set. I had the pleasure of meeting my old army comrade, Mr. Robert Jamieson, formerly of my company, who is now in the insurance business in Danville. Well do I remember our race for life and liberty on the early morning of the capture of Petersburg. I escaped; Bob was captured and was permitted to "recreate" at Point Lookout for several months after the "great rebellion."

Southern Immigration Convention.

The Southern Immigration Convention met at Hot Springs, N. C., yesterday, with about 300 delegates in attendance. Gov. Lee, of Virginia, was elected chairman. On the platform with Gov. Lee were Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Elder, Gov. John B. Gordon, Gov. J. P. Richardson, and others. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That an immigration association be established, with headquarters in the city of New York, to be styled "The Southern Immigration Association."

Resolved, That this association be placed under the charge of a board of directors, composed of one member of each Southern railroad or other corporation, trade, industrial or other organization, in the State, county, city or town situated east of the Mississippi river, that will contribute a sum of one thousand dollars towards the expenses of the said association on or before the first day of July next, and that on the second Tuesday of July, 1888, the board so constituted shall meet in New York, and proceed to organize and adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations as may be necessary for its government.

Resolved, That until the said organization is perfected Major John D. Kelly, Jr., be constituted chief of the association, with power to call the board together whenever the said board shall be called from railroads or other corporations, trade, industrial or other organizations of States, cities, counties and towns shall have reached the aggregate sum of twenty thousand dollars; and when such call has been made the board of directors shall proceed immediately to perfect the permanent organization, as provided for in the second resolution herewith submitted.

Resolved, That upon the adoption of these resolutions the secretary of the convention shall give notice of the same to the Governor of each of the Southern States, to the president of each of the Southern railroads, and to the mayor of every city, and to every town in the Southern States east of the Mississippi river having a population of five thousand or more, and to solicit the co-operation of said officers in furthering the objects of this convention.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The stock market opened steady to firm this morning, most of the list being small fractions higher as compared with last evening's closing figures. The market was active, but the animation was confined principally to ten or a dozen leading stocks, while the rest of the list was quiet to dull and most of the activity disappeared from the market before the end of the hour. Prices were irregular and somewhat feverish, but generally drooping in the early trading, some stocks declining as much as 4 per cent, but this movement was of short duration and most of the losses were subsequently regained. The advance was accompanied by a renewal of the former activity, and at 11 o'clock the market was active and strong, generally at slight fractions better than first prices. Money easy at 2 1/2.
